- We can offer you advice on floral tributes, masonry services, order of service, newspaper notices, complimentary online obituaries and any other services you may require.

- We provide a 24-hour service supporting you up to the time of the funeral and an advice service afterwards.
- We will take care of all arrangements and documentation for repatriation in and out of the country.

Caring for you

Thank you for choosing us as your Funeral Director. We will be by your side every step of the way, providing a personal service, tailored to meet your needs and support you and your family.

We have created this booklet to help you create the right funeral for your loved one. It contains a step-by-step guide to funeral planning, covering all the main considerations and explaining how we can help.

Take a little time to go through the guide and if you need any support, we're here for you. There's an index of our funeral homes at the back of this brochure or visit www.centralengland.coop/funeral to find your nearest location. Our colleagues understand just how important it is to have a helping hand in your time of need and are available 24 hours a day.

Caring for your loved one

A dedicated team of trained colleagues will bring your loved one into our care. We will look after your loved one ensuring dignity, respect and careful consideration of all faiths. We provide the facility to pay your last respects in our Remembrance Rooms if you wish.

Our Remembrance Rooms provide a private, secure place for family and friends to pay their respects before the funeral. This is a personal choice; many people take great comfort in visiting their loved one. Others choose not to visit their loved one as they wish to remember them as they were. Others wish to have their loved one brought home or taken into a church the night before the funeral. We'll take you through all the options available to you.

Step 1

What to do when someone passes away

When death happens at home

Inform your doctor or health professional as soon as possible to come and certify the death at home. If the doctor is aware that death is due to natural causes, then they will issue the Medical Certificate.

If your loved one's death was sudden or unexpected whilst at home, the Coroner may need to be involved. You will be informed if this is the case.

Contact us:

After informing the doctor, you should contact our funeral home. We will arrange a suitable time, day or night, to visit you to bring your loved one into our care.

When death happens in hospital

The hospital staff will support you with advice initially and you will be referred to the bereavement office which will issue you with the Medical Certificate. Our trained colleagues will liaise with the bereavement office to bring your loved one into our care. Where the death was sudden or unexpected, the Coroner may need to be involved. You will be informed if this is the case.

Contact us:

Contact our funeral home. We will liaise with the hospital to arrange a suitable time to bring your loved one into our care.

When someone dies suddenly

When someone dies unexpectedly, it is normal for the Coroner (England, Wales and Northern Ireland) to be involved. There are many reasons why this can happen, for example the Coroner is automatically involved in most sudden or unexpected deaths, especially if the person who has passed away has not been under a doctor's care on a regular basis. The paramedics, or any police involved, will inform the relevant Coroner's office.

Contact us:

Contact our funeral home as soon as possible. We can advise on the procedures involved and liaise with the Coroner.

Please call us at any time with any questions you might have. During the day one of our colleagues will be able to assist you. Outside of working hours we have a dedicated care team who will also be able to support you.

Telephone numbers for your chosen funeral home can be found at the back of this brochure or on our website:

Step 2

Informing the Registrar

In England, Wales and Northern Ireland, the Registrar must be informed of the death within five working days. This must happen before the funeral can take place and can be completed by any one of the following people:

- A relative of your loved one.
- The person taking responsibility of the funeral arrangements.
- Any person present at the death.
- The occupier of the premises where death occurred.

It's a good idea to arrange an appointment with the Registrar's office.

To find your relevant Registrar's office visit: www.gov.uk/register-offices

We can do this for you and can accompany you if you wish. However we are unable to register the death on your behalf.

Information the Registrar needs:

- Full name (and details of any names previously used, e.g. maiden name).
- Date and place of birth.
- Date and place of death.
- Their usual address.
- Occupation.
- Whether they had a pension, or an allowance from public funds.
- Name, occupation and date of birth of the surviving spouse (if married).
- Medical Certificate of Cause of Death (issued by either the doctor or the hospital).
- National Health Service Medical Card (if available).
- The full name and usual address of the person registering the death, as well as the reason they are the informant.

Some Registrar's offices offer the "Tell Us Once" service that lets you report the death to most government organisations in one go. Your Registrar will inform you if this service is available in your area and provide you with a contact number and unique reference code to enable you to use the service.

More information on this service can be found at:

www.gov.uk/after-a-death/organisations-you-need-to-contact-and-tell-us-once

Once you have registered the death, the Registrar will give you two certificates:

- A Certificate for Burial or Cremation:
This is given to the funeral director before the funeral takes place (unless the Coroner is involved).
- A Certified Copy of an Entry:
Often known as the Death Certificate. This is required by all legal and financial organisations. Extra copies can be obtained for a small fee.

Step 3

Making funeral arrangements

You can contact us to arrange a convenient time for you to make funeral arrangements within your chosen funeral home. Alternatively you can request that one of our colleagues books an appointment to visit you at home.

You do not need to wait to register the death before making contact. We can discuss your requirements and, in some circumstances, make a provisional booking for you until you obtain the relevant certification. You can find your nearest funeral home by referring to the address list at the back of this brochure or visit:

www.centralengland.coop/funeral

The person responsible for making the funeral arrangements will usually be a relative or someone appointed in the will. This person becomes our client and will take responsibility for making decisions about the funeral arrangements, as well as settling the account. We maintain contact with the client throughout the funeral process - during the time before the funeral, on the day and after the funeral has taken place.

Decisions around the funeral service

Your loved one may have created provisions in their will, taken out a pre-paid plan or discussed their funeral wishes with you. If this is not the case, you and your family will need to choose what you feel is appropriate.

We commit to helping and advising you every step of the way. It is important you take time to consider the following:

- Whether to have a burial or cremation.
- The date and time of the service.
- Where the funeral will take place – church, crematorium chapel, cemetery chapel, graveside or elsewhere.
- The type of ceremony and who will officiate – a minister, religious leader, humanist, family relative or a friend.
- Choice of music – hymns, songs or live music.
- Choice of readings and poems.
- Writing the eulogy.
- Service stationery and photographs.
- Whether to have flowers, charity donations or both.
- If an obituary or funeral notice is required for the newspaper.
- What you would like your loved one to wear.
- Choice of coffin style and finish.

Step 4

Considerations for...

Burial arrangements

As well as a churchyard or cemetery, we can help with burial in a family vault or even at sea. Woodland or nature reserve burial sites are also available, where trees or wildflowers are planted instead of headstones and memorials. Consideration should be given to your preferred choice of memorial to ensure the chosen area is suitable. Your funeral arranger can advise.

Burial plots

If a space has already been purchased or reserved in a cemetery, there will be a Grant of Exclusive Right of Burial (The Deeds) which may be with your loved one's personal documents. You'll need this before the burial can take place. We can also arrange the purchase of a new burial plot should one be needed.

We'll advise you on the fees applicable and make arrangements for:

- Purchasing a new grave or plot.
- Preparing the grave.
- The fixing of a masonry memorial.

Cremation arrangements

If you think cremation is more fitting, you can still opt to hold a full funeral service at the crematorium chapel beforehand, or hold it at a different location first. Most crematoria incorporate a chapel. However you may wish to hold a service in church or another location before the service of committal at the crematorium chapel.

Cremated remains can be scattered, buried, kept or transformed - just ask us for advice. Whatever you decide, we can take care of the necessary arrangements for you.

Repatriation

If the funeral is to take place abroad, we can make all the necessary arrangements for you.

Offering you choice

We believe that families should have as much information as possible to help arrange their loved one's funeral. We will listen to you, guide you and offer you choice when it comes to services we can provide.

By looking at many different ways in which people say goodbye we hope to help you with your own choices and support you with your loved one's funeral arrangements.

Many families now see the funeral as a way of celebrating a loved one's life rather than simply mourning their death.

We can provide you with a wide range of choices which can give you the opportunity to celebrate the life of your loved one; their personality, their passions and your memories.

Depending on your requirements, we can co-ordinate floral tributes, masonry services, choice of coffin, order of service, newspaper notices, a complimentary online obituary and any other services you may choose.

Step 5

After the Funeral Service

As well as allowing family and friends to have a chance to meet up, chat and reminisce, a reception also serves a practical purpose in providing refreshments for mourners who've travelled a long way to get to the funeral.

Whatever you're planning, just ask us for a helping hand.

We can also help by arranging the following:

- Acknowledgement notices in a newspaper
A chance to thank everyone for their support and wishes.
- Monumental masonry
Providing a comforting place for friends and family to visit after a burial or an interment of cremated remains takes place.
- Other memorials
Such as the book of remembrance, a plaque, bench, tree or online memorial.
- Gifts and donations
Many people set up a donation to benefit a charity. You can do this by creating an online memorial which we can set up on your behalf. Not only does this allow you to create a private forum for families and friends to access and leave messages, but you can also link with JustGiving to make donations to your chosen charity.

We will be here for you and your loved one on their final journey.

We will support and guide you in making their journey unique to enhance memories and love.

Step 6

Handling Your Loved One's Estate

The funeral is one of the first things to be arranged when a loved one passes away. What follows are the legal, tax and administrative matters concerning their affairs and estate, many of which need to be attended to immediately.

Immediate considerations

There are many pressing questions to address when a loved one passes away:

- Are there any insurance issues on vehicles and properties?
- Is there now an unoccupied property and what needs to be done?
- Do benefits need to be stopped and is the surviving spouse/civil partner entitled to any future benefits or rent/tax rebates?
- Who needs to be notified of the death?
- Where do you go for bereavement support?
- How do you prevent unwanted future mail being received?

Who needs to be notified of the death

Many organisations will need to be notified of the death, depending upon the circumstances. These could include:

- Banks and building societies for savings and investments.
- Financial institutions for loans, credit agreements and standing orders.
- Insurers and utility companies for change of name such as motor and house insurance and all household utility bills.
- Many others including employer, tax office, pensions departments, Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA), family doctor, passport office, hospital and Department for Work and Pensions (DWP).

Dealing with a loved one's estate

The administration of the estate covers legal, tax and administrative work and can be both complex and time-consuming.

Our dedicated legal experts at Co-operative Legal Services can:

- Explain what Probate is to you and advise on whether it is required.
- Explain the steps to take when Probate is and is not required.
- Help you identify who has the legal right to administer the estate known as the Personal Representative.
- Explain the role of the Personal Representative and their liability for any mistakes or errors.

Financial and Legal services

Financial and legal concerns don't need to be a burden. As our client, you're entitled to free legal advice to help with any complicated financial issues, such as Probate. Our legal partners will be in touch with you before the funeral to offer complimentary advice on their services. If you do not wish to be contacted, please inform your funeral arranger.

Administering the Estate

If your loved one's estate is worth more than £5,000 (in sole name), you may need to appoint an administrator and handle the Grant of Probate or Letters of Administration to release funds for bills and funeral costs. Our legal partners can help you with this.

Pre-Paid Funeral Plans

Our Funeral Plan is a simple way of paying towards the cost of your funeral in advance, whilst at the same time making sure that your personal wishes are recorded in every detail.

Why are Funeral Plans such a good idea?

By being prepared and taking care of things now, you will be helping your family by reducing some of the emotional and financial burdens when the time comes. You can also protect yourself from rising funeral costs by securing the cost of your funeral today. The cost of a typical funeral has almost doubled in the last decade and is set to continue to rise at a similar rate*. No matter how much funeral expenses increase, choosing a Funeral Plan means that your family will have nothing more to pay for the chosen services in your Plan when the funeral takes place. There is also the opportunity for you to personalise your funeral by expressing your particular wishes to us.

Choice and Affordability

Our Funeral Directors will use their expert knowledge to guide you through all the choices from our selection of Pre-paid Funeral Plans. We are able to offer a wide choice of payment options, whether you want a burial or cremation. They include all the necessary services to meet your specific requirements.

To make things as affordable as possible, you can choose to pay in one single payment or by spreading the cost over a set period of 12, 24, 36 or 60 months.

A name you can trust

As funeral planning experts, with over 70 years' experience in arranging funerals, our funeral homes promise to provide families with individual support, care and reassurance when it matters most.

To find out more about making funeral arrangements in advance or to receive further information, you can either visit or telephone your local funeral home, arrange for a visit in the comfort of your own home, visit our website:

www.centralengland.coop/funeral or call our team on 0800 454 552 at any time.

Funeral Wishes

We believe everyone has the right to a dignified, professional funeral service; a service that respects your wishes and allows loved ones to say a final farewell in the manner you have chosen. In addition to the Pre-paid Funeral Plan service, our Funeral Wishes service is available to those who wish to arrange their funeral details but do not wish to make a financial commitment at this stage.

As well as making sure you receive the service of your choice, a Funeral Wishes Certificate spares loved ones the upset of making decisions that can be difficult.

The Funeral Wishes service is free of charge and available to anyone. All you need to do is complete a simple form and return it to one of our funeral homes so that your wishes are clear at the time of need.

For further information call 0800 454 552, visit www.centralengland.coop/funeralwishes or write to Funeral Services, Central House, Hermes Road, Lichfield, Staffordshire WS13 6RH.
